

For Immediate Release

AgWorks Software Announces New Relationship with CDMS

Davenport, Iowa - April 10, 2015- AgWorks Software, LLC, a leading provider of unified agronomy management software for Agri-Business Retailers, announced a new partnership today with CDMS, Inc. to provide crop protection compliance information within AgWorks' new unified agronomy software.

Greg Duhachek, President of AgWorks says "CDMS represents the most complete and accurate compliance data available today and I am excited to bring access to this information seamlessly inside of our agronomy operational tools for our customers. This is another key step toward our vision of eradicating inefficiency in our customers' daily work lives and driving down their liability risk."

This partnership will allow AgWorks to better serve their customers by providing the most accurate and current product information available within the framework of their new unified agronomy management system for ag retailers called AgOS®.

About Agworks

By Ag Retail, For Ag Retail

AgWorks was founded in 1992 in Preston, Iowa and currently serves more than 450 ag retail locations in 27 states across the U.S. Our staff has more than 100 years combined experience in agricultural retail ownership, operations, and farming. That experience provides the foundation necessary to create truly effective unified agronomy software and motivates us to continually develop new solutions that drive efficiency for our customers.

About CDMS

CDMS, Inc. provides real time crop protection product information and decision support technologies to the agricultural and food industries with sales throughout the United States and the Americas. CDMS services are utilized by a broad-range of market participants across the continuum of crop production including product manufacturers, food production and processing companies, retail distribution, consultants, applicators and growers.

For more information contact:

Agworks, LLC
Don Hilligoss
don@agworks.net
509-397-5666

CDMS
Scott Mueller
Scott@cdms.net
800.237.2367